My dad made beautiful boomerangs. You could hear them whistling in the sky when they were thrown. Once you get them whistling you know you are a boomerang maker. The whistling effect is important to hunters. The swans or the ducks won't lift off the lagoon because the boomerangs make the noise whistling and circling overhead.. While we are throwing our boomerangs, another hunter carefully enters the water, dives under the water...Through the reeds, grab the birds by the legs and pulls them under, breaks their necks and puts them in a little string belt he wears around his waist. And there's your evening meal.
